Let's Start!

When the door opened he saw gold and silver everywhere!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What stories have you read or seen that involve hidden treasure?
- Why do you think these stories have always been popular?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about myths and legends.
- I can talk about things that are being done or have been done.
- I can quote other people.

Let's Explore!

Why doesn't Hansel choose a chalice*?

* A "chalice" is a large cup, used for drinking wine.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

So you remember the story about Hansel, the young man who has been told to find a wife? He's been given three keys. He has been told to choose whatever he wants from the rooms they open. Now, he's standing in the castle.

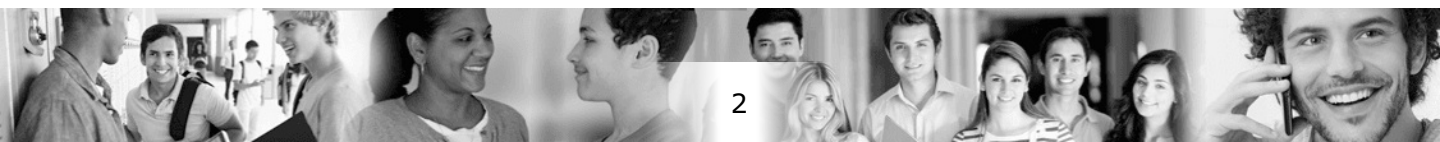

The first room is open and the contents are being considered. The guard at the door told Hansel that he was the first person to unlock that room! He says that everything this room contained is covered in pearls. Hansel replied that he wouldn't be in there long. When Hansel comes out, the guard is shocked to find the simplest single pearl necklace has been chosen.

Now the second door is being opened. This door has been closed for decades. The guard asks Hansel if he knew it had been filled with silver objects before he was born. Most of the silver -- candlesticks and jewelry and chalices -- is being displayed on large oak tables around the room. Hansel chooses a plain silver cup.

When the third door is opened and a golden object has been picked out, Hansel goes back to the pond. A beautiful young woman is standing there.

She smiles and tells Hansel that he has saved her. She continues saying that because he chose the simplest things, the castle was his. She tells him he could marry whoever he wanted. Then, the young woman changes into a beautiful white dove and flies away.

Hansel marries a simple woman, and they live happily ever after.

Let's Practice!

This is what Hansel has found in the magic castle.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Organize the sentences to complete part of the story. Number the sentences to organize them in a logical sequence.

1. ____ He has been given three keys. He has been told to choose whatever he wants from the rooms they open.
2. ____ Most of the silver, candlesticks and jewelry and chalices is being displayed on large oak tables around the room. Hansel chooses a plain silver cup.

Learning Points

The Passive: The Present Continuous and Present Perfect Tenses

You use the Present Continuous to talk about an action that is happening at the time of speaking. The action or event is in progress.

Few people actually know what exactly is happening to the ozone layer.

You use the Present Perfect to talk about a finished action or event with present consequences. There is a connection between what happened in the past and the present. Someone has given him three keys.

You often choose the passive form when you want to talk about an action but are not so interested in saying who or what does/did it. Passives without agents (the doers) are common in storytelling.

Look at the chart below for the structure of the passive voice.

| Name               | Structure                           | Example                                                                     |
|--------------------|-------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Present Continuous | am/are/is + being + past participle | The first room is open and the contents are being considered. |
| Present Perfect    | have/has + been + past participle   | He has been given three keys.                                 |

Examples:

- The first room is open and the contents are being considered.
- So you remember the story about Hansel, the young man who has been told to find a wife? He has been given three keys. He has been told to choose whatever he wants from the rooms they open.
- When Hansel comes out, the guard is shocked to find the simplest single pearl necklace has been chosen.
- Most of the silver, candlesticks and jewelry and chalices, is being displayed on large oak tables around the room.
- When the third door is opened and a golden object has been picked out, Hansel goes back to the pond.

Learning Points

Reported Speech and Questions

You use reported speech (indirect speech) when you are saying (reporting) what other people said. This style of writing is common in storytelling. It allows the writer to share dialogue with the reader without always using quotation marks.

When you tell people what someone has said you generally make the verb tense 'more in the past' since we are reporting the information at a later time. You need to change the verb to the next past form.

For example:

| Direct speech                     | Reported speech                      |
|-----------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| "I hate him."              | He said he hated him.         |
| "I'm coming to the party." | He said he was coming .       |
| "I already know ."         | He said he had already known. |
| "I can swim."              | She told me she could swim.   |

You have to change the pronoun if you are reporting what someone else said. Compare these two sentences. In each case the person actually said "I don't want to go."

- I said, "I don't want to go." > I said I didn't want to go.
- Beth said, "I don't want to go." > Beth said she didn't want to go.

When you want to report questions asked, the subject normally comes before the verb.

Direct: Hansel replied "I won't be in there long."

Indirect: Hansel replied that he wouldn't be in there long.

When the question is a yes/no question, you use if or whether to report it.

The guard asks Hansel if/whether he knew it has been filled with silver objects before he was born.

Learning Points

Look at the chart below to see the changes in verb tense.

| Direct speech        | Reported speech          |
|----------------------|--------------------------|
| Simple Present       | Simple Past              |
| Present Progressive  | Past Progressive         |
| Simple Past          | Past Perfect             |
| Present Perfect      | Past Perfect             |
| Past Progressive     | Past Perfect Progressive |
| Future Simple (will) | Conditional (would)      |
| Modal Can            | Modal Could              |
| Modal May            | Modal Might              |
| Modal Will           | Modal Would              |

Examples:

- The guard at the door told Hansel that he was the first person to unlock that room!
- He says that everything this room contained was covered in pearls.
- Hansel replied that he wouldn't be in there long.
- The guard informs Hansel it was filled with silver objects before he was born.
- She smiles and tells Hansel that he has saved her.
- She continues saying that because he chose the simplest things, the castle was his.
- She tells him he could marry whoever he wanted.
- The guard asks Hansel if he knew it has been filled with silver objects before he was born.
