Let's Start!

Can Fairy Tales come true? Can it happen to you?

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What are some popular fairy tales that children like to hear about today?
- How are they the same or different from ones you heard as a child?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about myths and legends.
- I can talk about things that are being done or have been done.
- I can quote other people.

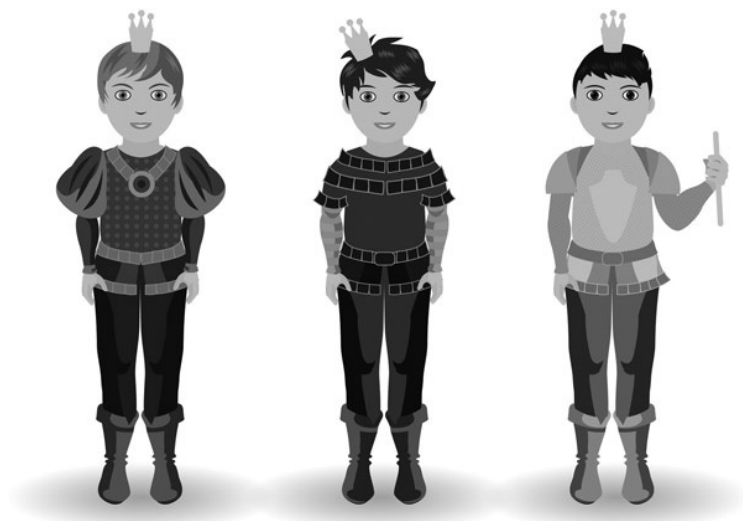

Let's Explore!

Has Hansel read the story of the frog prince?

* In "The Frog Prince", a young woman kisses a frog under a spell and he turns into a prince.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

This tale has been told by people in my family for ages.

There is a father with three sons. They are being pushed to marry. They have been sent out to look for wives. They've been told not to come back without one.

One son, Hansel, is not the brightest bulb in the box. While passing a pond, he's being watched by a frog. The frog asks Hansel where he was going. Like ... who hasn't been asked a question by a frog, right?

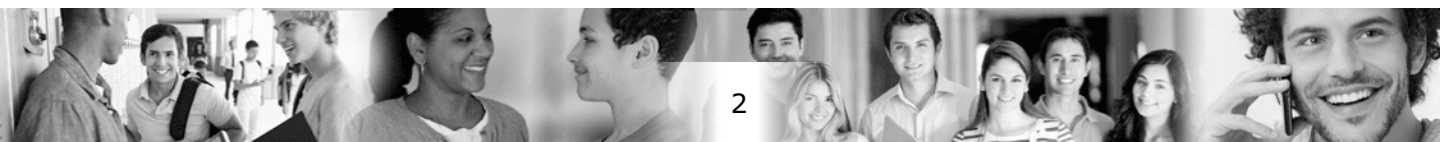

Hansel explains that he is looking for a wife. The frog jumps onto a leaf and asks Hansel if it could marry him. Simple Hansel says that, yes, he could marry the frog and treks home.

The father asks his sons whether they have found wives. He jumps for joy as he is being told that each of them has. He says that he would give the family abode to the son who brought home the most beautiful wife.

Each son feels that the beautiful wife has already been found. (I told you that Hansel was none too bright. He considers his frog a beauty!)

So, the frog in the pond has been asked to go back to Hansel's house as Hansel's future wife. (Perhaps Hansel has been told the story of the frog prince!) The frog is very happy.

Hansel has been given three keys and told to take them to a castle and take what he wants from the rooms they open.

Let's Practice!

This story has been told before.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Select the correct answer. Practice saying the complete sentences aloud with your partner. Correct each other.

1. They have _____ out to look for wives. They've not to come back without one.
2. Like ... who hasn't _____ a question by a frog, right?
3. The father jumps for joy as he is _____ that each of his sons has found a wife.
4. Each son feels that the most beautiful wife has already _____.
5. Perhaps Hansel has _____ the story of the frog prince!

Let's Practice!

You don't meet a talking frog every day!

Read the sentences. Match the original sentences in Column A to report the story tale in Column B.

COLUMN A

- The frog asked Hansel where was he going.
- Hansel explained that he was looking for a wife.
- The frog jumped onto a leaf and asked Hansel if he could marry him.
- The father asked his sons whether he had found wives.
- I told you that Hansel was none too bright.

COLUMN B

- I'm looking for a husband.
- Hansel is very bright.
- Have you found the keys?
- Have you found a wife?
- Hansel isn't very bright.
- I'm looking for a wife.
- Can you marry me?
- Where are you going?

Extension Activity

Watch a fairy tale and write about a character in it.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online or to the library and find a child's fairytale.
- Watch it and think about how the characters are being presented.
- Choose one character and write a paragraph giving a physical description.
- In a second paragraph talk about what the character is like as a person giving examples of their reactions, behaviors, and life experiences.
- Read your description aloud to a partner.

Reported Speech and Questions

You use reported speech (indirect speech) when you are saying (reporting) what other people said.

This style of writing is common in storytelling. It allows the writer to share dialogue with the reader without always using quotation marks.

When you tell people what someone has said you generally make the verb tense 'more in the past' since we are reporting the information at a later time. You need to change the verb to the next past form.

For example:

Direct speech	Reported speech
"I love him."	She said she loved him.
"I' m coming to the party."	He said he was coming .
"I already drank ."	He said he had already drunk.
"I can speak English."	He told me he could speak English.

You have to change the pronoun if you are reporting what someone else said. Compare these two sentences. In each case the person actually said "I don't want to go."

- I said, "I don't want to go." > I said I didn't want to go.
- Beth said, "I don't want to go." > Beth said she didn't want to go.

When you want to report questions asked, the subject normally comes before the verb.

Direct: The frog asks Hansel "Where are you going?"

Indirect: The frog asks Hansel where he was going.

When the question is a yes/no question, you use if or whether to report it.

The father asks his sons if/whether they have found wives.

Learning Points

Look at the chart below to see the changes in verb tense.

Direct speech	Reported speech
Simple Present	Simple Past
Present Progressive	Past Progressive
Simple Past	Past Perfect
Present Perfect	Past Perfect
Past Progressive	Past Perfect Progressive
Future Simple (will)	Conditional (would)
Modal Can	Modal Could
Modal May	Modal Might
Modal Will	Modal Would

Examples:

- The frog asks Hansel where he was going.
- Hansel explains that he was looking for a wife. The frog jumps onto a leaf and asks Hansel if it could marry him.
- The father asks his sons whether they have found wives.
- Hansel explains that he was looking for a wife. The frog jumps onto a leaf and asks Hansel if it could marry him.
- I told you that Hansel was none too bright.

Learning Points

The Passive: The Present Continuous and Present Perfect Tenses

Use the Present Continuous to discuss an action that is going on at the time of speaking. The action or event is in progress.

People are pushing them to marry.

You use the Present Perfect to talk about a finished action or event with present consequences. There is a connection between what occurred in the past and the present. This tale has been told by people in my family for ages.

You often choose the passive form when you want to talk about an action but are not so interested in saying who or what does/did it. Passives without agents (the doers) are common in storytelling.

Look at the chart below for the structure of the passive voice.

Name	Structure	Example
Present Continuous	am/are/is + being + past participle	They are being pushed to marry.
Present Perfect	have/has + been + past participle	They have been sent out to look for wives.

Examples:

- They have been sent out to look for wives. They've been told not to come back without one.
- Like ... who hasn't been asked a question by a frog, right?
- He jumps for joy as he is being told that each of them has.
- Each son feels that the beautiful wife has already been found.
- So, the frog in the pond has been asked to go back to Hansel's house as Hansel's future wife.
- Perhaps Hansel has been told the story of the frog prince!
