Let's Start!

Tricksters are sometimes tricked!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What stories do you know that involve someone trying to trick another person?
- Why do you think this person is often talked about in myths and legends?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about myths and legends.
- I can talk about reactions and behaviors in different situations?
- I can talk about things that happened or had happened.

Let's Explore!

"With all due respect*, sir ..." the man said.

* "With all due respect" means that I say this, "I respect you, even though I am not going to agree with you".

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

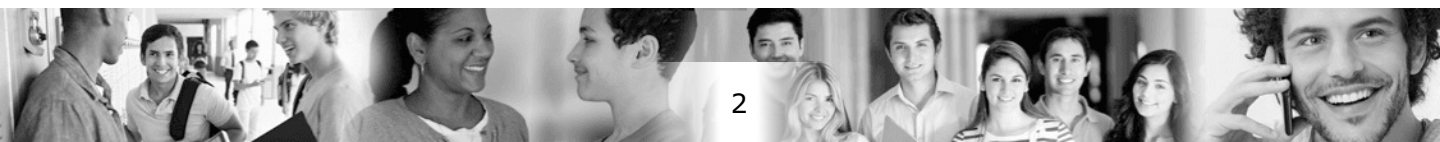

There once was a wealthy man. He had always tried to find ways to save money by tricking the men who worked for him. One day he was looking for somebody to work for him.

A simple-looking man on the street had caught his eye. The rich man had walked over confidently and offered him fifty cents a day. The simple man had agreed. The rich man was happy. He had thought carefully about jobs that would require the man to work far harder than he should for the money.

When they had arrived at the wealthy man's house, they went to bed because it was dark. In the morning, the rich man sent the simple fellow for breakfast. While the simple man was eating, the rich man told him that he was working out in the fields for the day. He also explained slyly that it was too far to come back for lunch.

So, the rich man's wife kindly served the man lunch. While the simple man was eating, the employer asked him if he wanted to eat his supper too. Then, he could come back late. The simple man humbly agreed and ate his supper. Just as he had finished, the rich man told him to go to work.

The simple man smiled mischievously and said "With all due respect, sir, I cannot go to work now. All my life I've gone to sleep after supper, and I'm not going to change now."

Let's Practice!

This is what happened between the rich man and the simple man.

Instructions: Match each sentence with its corresponding response. Write the number in front of each response.

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. The rich man walked over confidently | a. ____ the simpler man wanted to eat supper, too. |
| 2. The rich man's wife kindly | b. ____ the simple man to go to work. |
| 3. The rich man asked if | c. ____ agreed and ate his supper. |
| 4. The simple man humbly | d. ____ served the simple man lunch. |
| 5. The rich man told | e. ____ and offered him fifty cents a day. |

Let's Practice!

The rich man had a simple plan for the simple man.

Learning Points

The Simple Past Tense

You use the Simple Past tense to talk about many kinds of past events: short, quickly finished actions, longer situations and repeated events.

Usually, when you use the Simple Past tense, the time of the finished action is clear from the context or explicitly mentioned in the sentence.

For example:

When they had arrived at the wealthy man's house, they went to bed because it was dark.

You can use the Simple Past with the Past Perfect to talk about the action that happened in the more recent past.

For example:

The rich man had walked over confidently and offered him fifty cents a day.

In this case, the action of "offering" happened in the most recent past, after the action of "walking over".

You can use the Simple Past with the Past Continuous to talk about an action that interrupted another action in progress in the past.

For example:

While the simple man was eating, the rich man told him that he was working out in the fields for the day.

The event of "telling" interrupts the action of "eating".

Remember that there are both regular and irregular verbs. Look at the chart for examples of the Simple Past tense verbs.

Regular Verbs:

Present	Past
explain	explained
smile	smiled

Learning Points

Irregular Verbs:

Present	Past
tell	told
is/are	was/were

Examples:

- While the simple man was eating, the rich man told him that he was working out in the fields for the day.
- The rich man was happy.
- He also explained slyly that it was too far to come back for lunch.
- The simple man humbly agreed and ate his supper.
- The simple man smiled mischievously.

The Past Perfect Tense

You use the Past Perfect tense to identify and talk about an 'earlier past'.

When you are talking about a past event, you can refer to something that happened at an earlier time to that past event by using the Past Perfect tense.

The structure of the Past Perfect is:

Subject + had + past participle

When I arrived at the party, Vanessa had already gone home.

Which event happened first? Vanessa went home.

Which event happened later? I arrived at the party.

When they had arrived at the wealthy man's house, they went to bed because it was dark.

Which event happened first? They arrived at the house.

Which event happened later? They went to bed.

Examples:

- He had thought carefully about jobs that would require the man to work far harder than he should for the money.
- Just as he had finished, the rich man told him to go to work.
- The rich man had walked over confidently and offered him fifty cents a day.
